

Supplementary S4. Answers to survey questions not fully reported in article text.

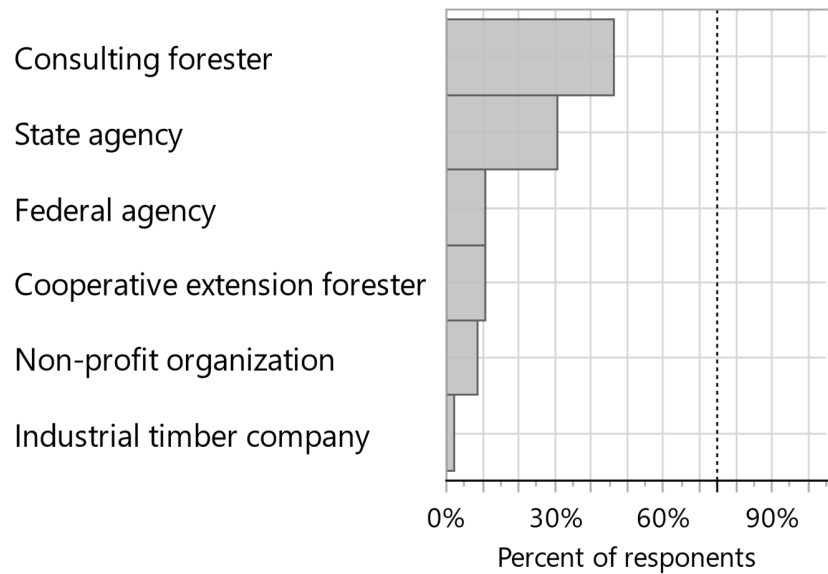

Figure S4a. Professional affiliations of survey participants. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

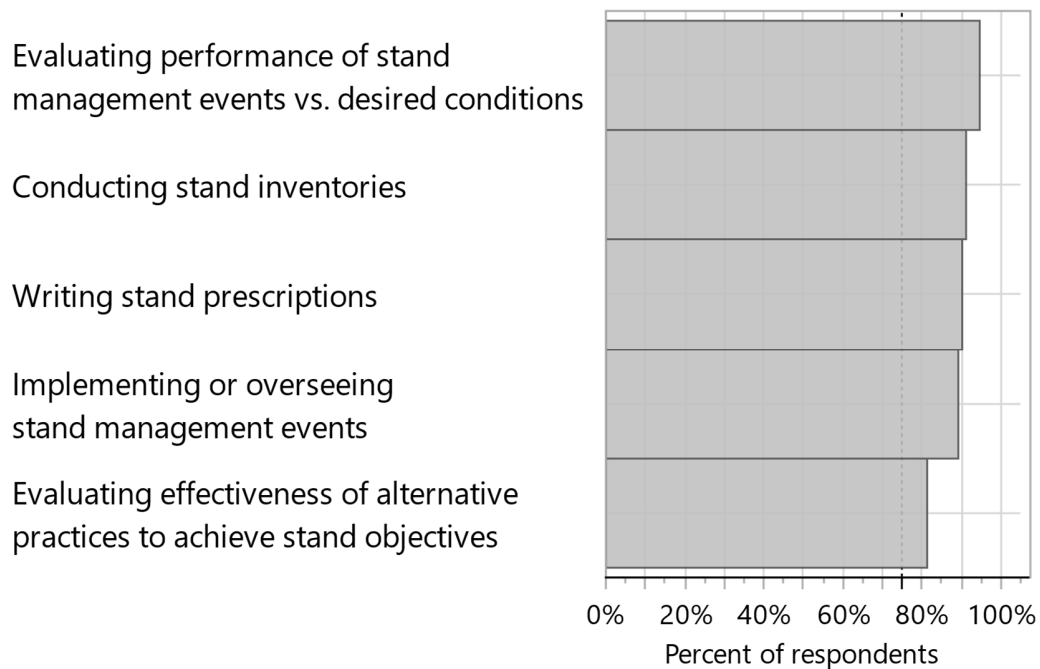

Figure S4b. Percent of survey respondents that participate in the 5 field forester activities we identified a priori. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

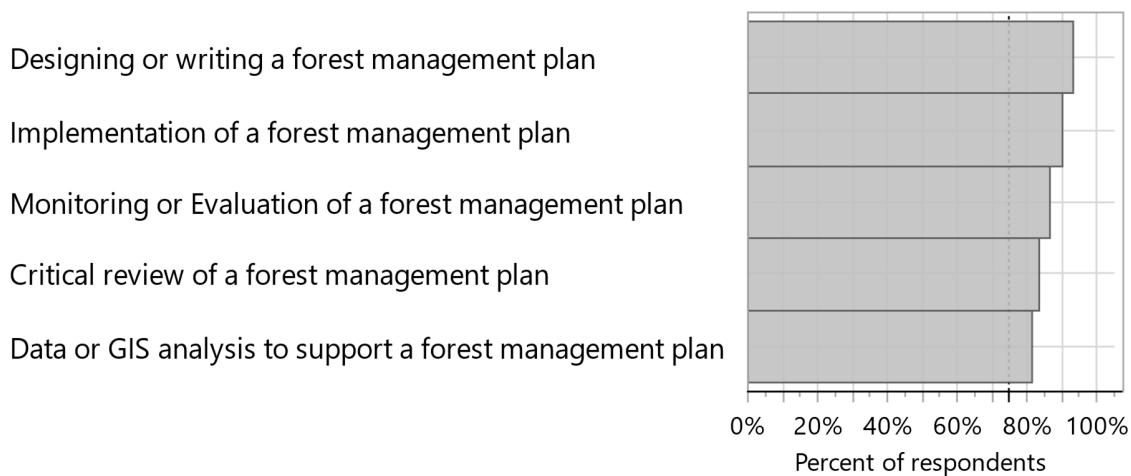

Figure S4c. Percent of survey respondents that participate in the 5 forest planner activities we identified a priori. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

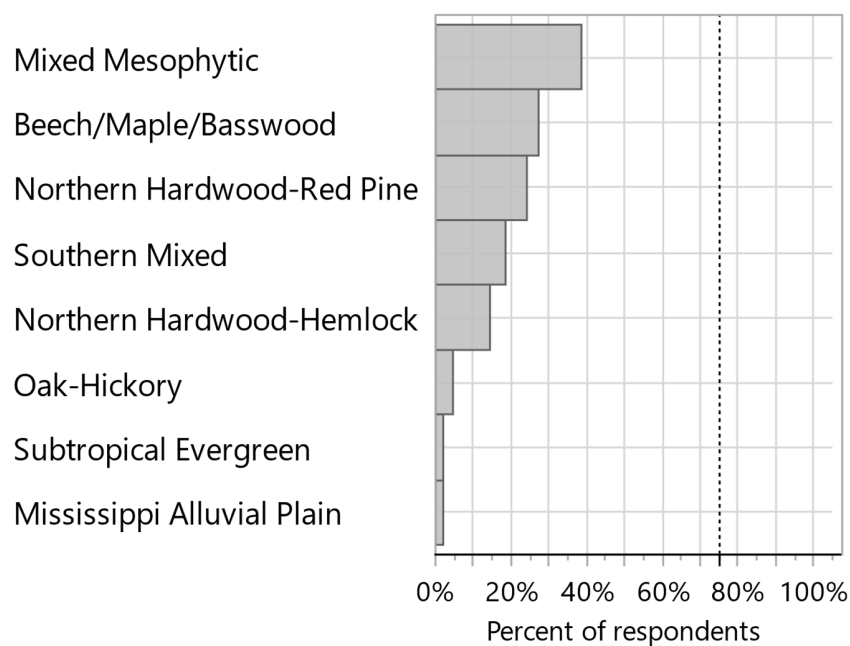

Figure S4d. Percent of survey respondents that reported working in 8 different eastern forest regions (after Dyer 2006) [1]. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

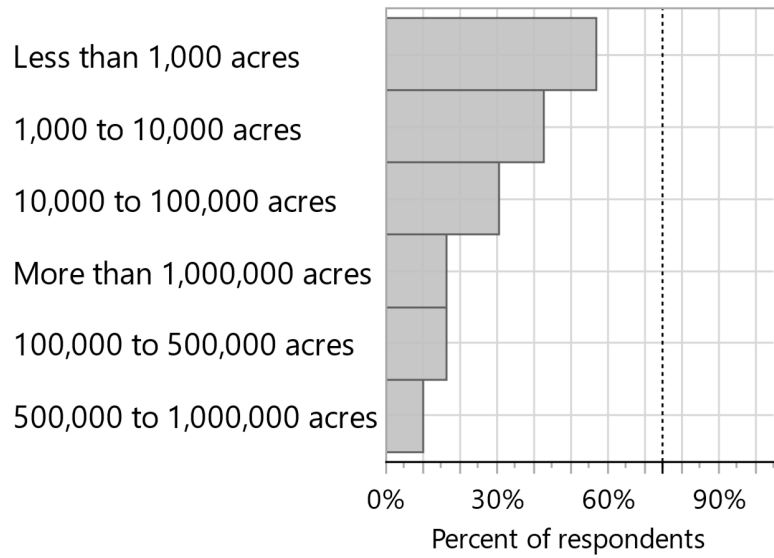

Figure S4f. Percent of survey respondents that reported working at 6 different landscape sizes. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

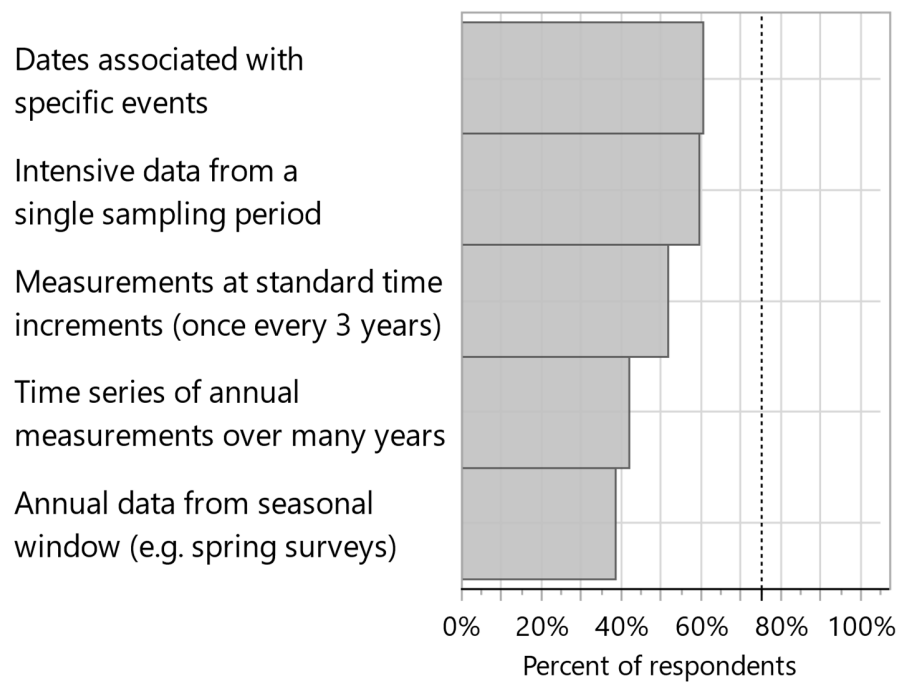

Figure S4e. Percent of survey respondents that reported working at 5 different temporal extents that we identified a priori. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

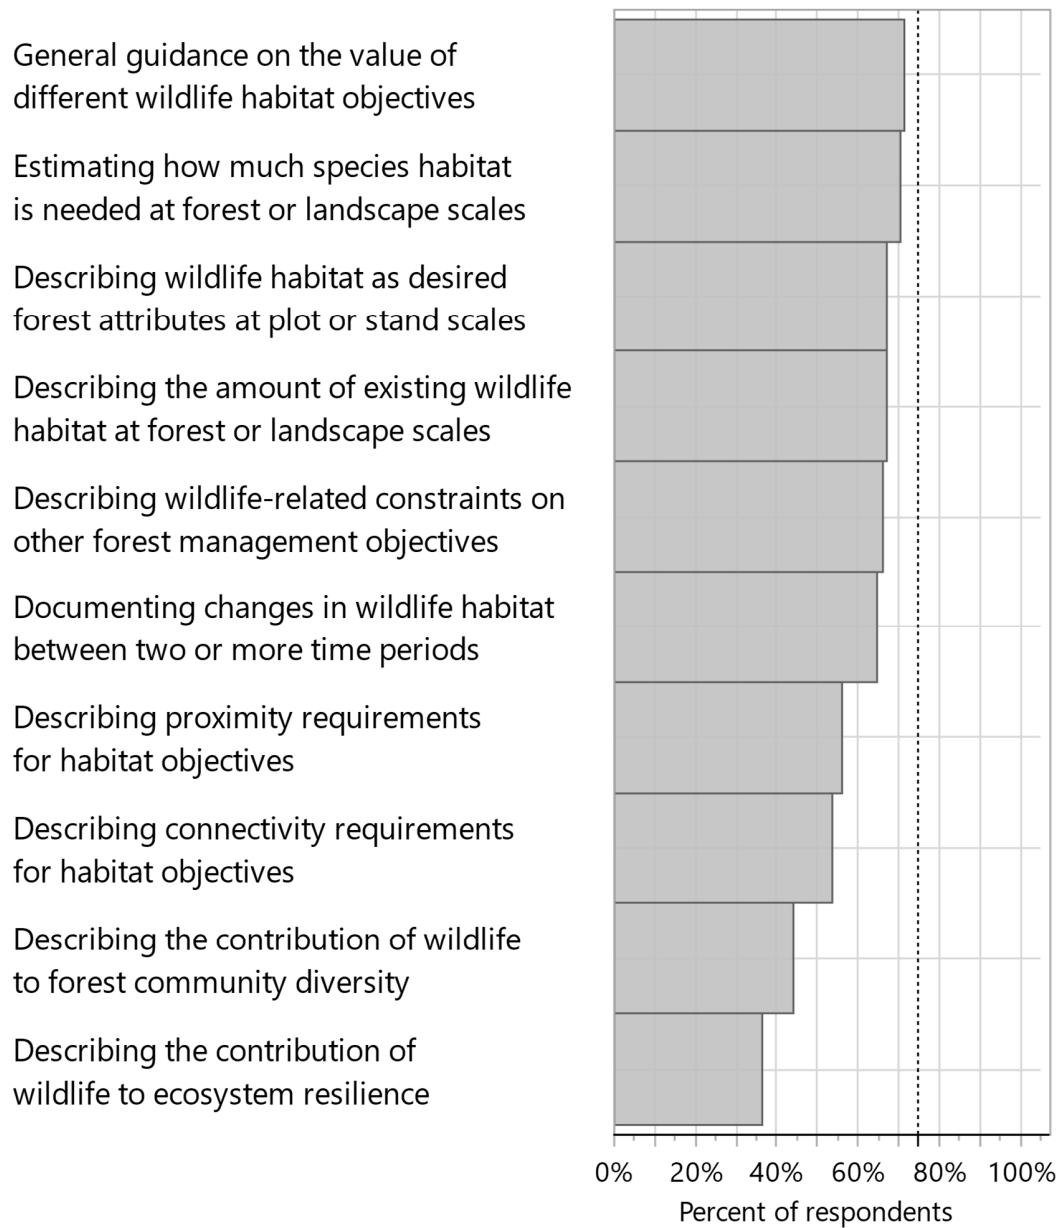

Figure S4g. Topics for which managers would like information from wildlife scientists. Dotted line represents 75% of survey respondents.

References

1. Dyer, J. M., Revisiting the deciduous forests of eastern north america. Bioscience 2006, 56(4), 341–352.